The moving story of how the first published African-American female poet regained what had been taken away from her and from slaves everywhere: a voice of her own. "We'll call her Phillis." In 1761, a young African girl was sold to the Wheatley family in Boston, who named her Phillis after the slave schooner that had carried her. Kidnapped from her home in Africa and shipped to America, she'd had everything taken from her - her family, her name, and her language.

Kelly Clarkson was left nearly speechless during Monday night's newest episode of The Voice after a contestant "one-upped" her on her own song. During the night's blind auditions, Nashville native Kelsie Watts performed a slowed-down cover of Clarkson's "I Dare You," an option that, as has been seen in the past – Lauren Hall was sent home in Season 17 after covering "Breakaway" – typically isn't the best idea, though her more intimate performance left the American Idol alum completely ...
